

In 2001, Pop-Pop took us on a tour of Lough Barra, his family's home in Donegal.

We stood around the water as he proudly shared every anecdote about the landscape in front of us, from the cabins to the mountains and the sparkling water. He made it his duty to know it all. A few years later, in 2009, he took me to lunch the day before I left for college. Over key lime pie, we discussed my goals, my classes, and his words of wisdom about any parties :)

These old memories invoke the clearest visions I have of him and his values to this day: loyalty to family, a resolve to make sure everyone else was taken care of, a belief in hard work, and pride in his history.

On behalf of his whole family, thank you all so much for coming out to celebrate the life of Dan McHugh this morning.

Your support and love is a testament to his incredible 86 years.

Please join our family for a luncheon at:
